Founders' letter

Dear Students,

A slump in the employability index of Indian youth hints at a widening skill gap. This is the outcome of institutes struggling to prepare aspirants to battle the dynamic challenges of the industry.

Sunstone's vision is to bridge the skill gap to address the needs of millions of candidates and hundreds of employers.
The Sunstone edge empowers you to meet the demands of the industry by adding experiential layers for holistic development.

We feel proud to see Sunstone contributing to nation-building at all levels and welcome you to be a part of this journey.

Sincerely,

Ashish Munjal   Piyush Nangru

MBA
PGDM

Master's in Business Administration (MBA) is a postgraduate degree focusing on business administration and investment management. The core courses in an MBA program cover various areas of business administration such as applied statistics, human resources, business communication, strategic management, business strategy, finance, managerial economics, entrepreneurship, marketing, supply-chain management, and operations management in a manner most relevant to management analysis and strategy.

Post Graduate Diploma in Management (PGDM) is a 2-year diploma program, offered by autonomous B-Schools recognised by AICTE, that focuses on providing practical knowledge of management. PGDM stands for Postgraduate Diploma in Management and is equivalent to MBA if the college is accredited by AIU. While graduates from any field are eligible for the course, candidates who have completed graduation in management-based specialisations are preferred. Admission is mostly based on entrance exams like MAT, CAT and XAT. A lot of working professionals and students prefer this management course because the syllabus is market and industry-oriented. It follows current trends in the market and moulds its syllabus accordingly.
